Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser Names New Partner

Steven I. Wallach joins firm's growing litigation practice group

Garden City, NY -- Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser, a leading Intellectual Property Law firm, has announced that Steven I. Wallach, a patent litigator trained in electrical engineering and computer science, has been named partner at the firm. Before joining Scully Scott, Steven was a partner at the law firm of Dilworth Paxson LLP, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Wallach spent most of his career in the Manhattan office of Pennie & Edmonds before that intellectual property firm closed in 2003.

"We're very pleased that Steven Wallach has joined the ranks of the firm's partners," said Paul Esatto, Senior Partner at Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser. "His skills in complex patent litigation matters and his years of experience in representing major companies in high-profile litigation cases will enhance the firm's growing litigation practice and its impressive list of clients." Wallach is the second litigator brought into the firm as a partner in recent months; Chad Ziegler, whose technical background is in biology and biotechnology, joined Scully Scott to enhance its litigation practice group in February 2009.

Wallach's practice concentrates on litigating and procuring patents, and includes opinions, licensing, and counseling on patent, copyright, trademark, trade-secret, and e-commerce issues. Since drafting and litigating the patent at issue in State Street Bank v. Signature Financial, much of his practice has focused on finance-related business methods, software, and computer systems. Technologies with which Wallach has experience include client-server systems, semiconductor fabrication, nanotechnology, medical devices, NMR spectrometers, vector network analyzers, inkjet cartridges and printers, polymer chemistry, and a variety of software programs and financial products, services, and instruments.

Wallach is a resident of New York City, New York. He received his B.S.E.E. cum laude from Polytechnic Institute of New York, with a concentration in Computer Science. He received his J.D. from George Washington University National Law Center. Wallach is admitted to the New York Bar and is admitted to practice before the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Ninth and Federal Circuits, U.S. District Courts for the Southern and Eastern Districts of New York and the Northern District of California. He is registered to practice before the United States Patent and Trademark Office.
