Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser Names Patent Agent

Microbiologist Joins Patent Law Firm

Garden City, NY -- Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser, a leading Intellectual Property Law firm, has announced that James Major, an immunologist and microbiologist, has joined the firm as a Patent Agent. Prior to joining Scully Scott, he was a Legal Intern at Kenyon & Kenyon LLP. Major is a British citizen and a resident of Brooklyn, New York.

"We're very pleased that James Major has joined Scully Scott," said Peter Bernstein, Partner at Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser. "His training and experience in the fields of microbiology and medical devices will add to our successful practice in those areas." Bernstein added, "Major is a strong addition to our already deep technology team, allowing us to grow our client base and meet the increasing demand for our legal services."

Dr. Major will practice in all aspects of preparing and prosecuting patent applications in the U.S. and worldwide, as well as assist in providing patentability, validity, and freedom-to-operate opinions. His fields of expertise include molecular biology, cellular biology, immunology, virology, microbiology, biochemistry, pharmacology, cardiovascular disease, analytical chemistry, and medical devices.

Major received a B.A. in Pathology from the University of Cambridge and a doctorate in immunology and microbiology from the University of Oxford. He is currently a J.D. candidate at New York Law School.

Major is registered to practice before the United States Patent and Trademark Office.
