Computer Scientist George Brieger Joins Firm as Patent Attorney

Garden City, NY -- Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser, a leading Intellectual Property Law firm, has announced that George Brieger, a computer scientist, has joined the firm as a patent attorney. Prior to joining Scully Scott, Brieger was a patent attorney at a Washington DC-based law firm. Before that, he was an international trade litigation attorney at the United States Customs Service.

"We're very pleased that George Brieger has joined Scully Scott," said Paul Esatto, Senior Partner at Scully, Scott, Murphy & Presser. "His training and experience in computer science will enhance our Intellectual Property practice in those areas. And, his experience practicing in Hungary will add to our existing international skill set." Esatto added, "George will nicely complement our already extensive technology capability, helping us to continue growing our firm and meet the increasing demand for our legal services."

Brieger will assist in preparing and prosecuting U.S. and international patent applications related to computer control systems, telecommunications, cell phones and data networks, integrated circuit design, image processing, business methods, e-commerce, and the electronic and mechanical arts. He will also counsel clients in the areas of patent infringement and validity, and patent licensing.

Brieger earned a B.S. in Computer Science at Brooklyn College and a J.D. at the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law.

Brieger is admitted to practice law in New York and Washington DC and is registered to practice before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.
